CHRISTMAS PRESS KIT · NEW THIS WINTER

The Winter Keepers

Christmas monsters the world forgot, told as horror poems

The Sawyer (Greece)

The Log (Catalonia), still from the upcoming film

THE SERIES

Everyone knows Krampus. The Winter Keepers brings back the Christmas monsters he left in the dark: creatures from world folklore that families once feared at midwinter, now nearly forgotten.

Each film is a short horror poem spoken by the monster itself, and Perry plays every keeper. Each runs one to three minutes, easy to embed or air.

The Sawyer: the Greek kallikantzaros, goblins who saw at the roots of the world all year and come down the chimney during the twelve days of Christmas. Out now.

The Log: Catalonia's Tió de Nadal, the Christmas log that is fed and beaten until it gives up its gifts. This one remembers every blow, and it is not alone. Coming soon.

More keepers through December.

STORY ANGLES

The Christmas monsters Krampus left behind

One Charlotte voice for every monster

Horror poetry goes cinematic

As seen on WCNC Charlotte Today (NBC) and in The Charlotte Post

PRESS ASSETS

Stills, vertical and widescreen clips, headshots and interviews are available on request. Exclusive first looks offered to outlets.

WATCH

www.nathanielperry.me/winter-keepers

Scan to watch The Sawyer and follow the series.

Press: nathanielperryvoice@gmail.com · Representation: DDO Artists Agency, Marissa Robinson Marino, (212) 379-6314

Nathaniel B. Perry

Horror poetry, made cinematic.
Horror poet · Voice actor · Creator of Poem Cast

ABOUT

Nathaniel B. Perry is a horror poet and voice actor based in Charlotte, North Carolina, represented by DDO Artists Agency in New York. He writes verse to be performed: poems built for space and sound, spoken in the voices of the monsters they describe.

He trained under Kristin Linklater (Freeing the Natural Voice) at Emerson College, with a performance background spanning Shakespeare, contemporary theater and broadcast radio. He records from a broadcast-quality studio and works with clients nationwide and internationally across commercials, narration, animation, video games and trailers.

His cinematic horror poem A More Dire Certainty has passed 66,000 views on YouTube. His series Poem Cast turns horror poetry into short films and audio drama; Season Two premiered on Halloween 2026. He performs new work live in Charlotte at The Conspiracy, Uptown.

AS SEEN ON

WCNC Charlotte Today (NBC Charlotte)
"A spooky soundtrack for Halloween: Charlotte voice actor brings monsters to life with Poem Cast," Oct. 2026

The Charlotte Post
"Charlotte poet turns imagination into interactive horror," by Nikya Hightower, Oct. 1, 2026

PRAISE

"The Don LaFontaine impact, with the Morgan Freeman gravitas. One voice."

Eliza Jane Schneider, CEO and Founder, Competitive Edge Voice Training

SELECTED WORK

The Winter Keepers (2026). Holiday horror film series, creator and performer

Poem Cast, Seasons One and Two. Cinematic horror poetry, writer and voice

A More Dire Certainty. Cinematic poem, 66,000+ YouTube views

The Origins of Dust and Blood. Poem Cast film, Eternity Box Entertainment, directed by Brenton Bent

AVAILABLE FOR

TV and radio segments, with a live performance on set (under 60 seconds)

Podcast guest spots on folklore, horror poetry and voice craft

Exclusive premieres of new Winter Keepers films

Live readings, screenings and holiday events

REPRESENTATION

DDO Artists Agency
Agent: Marissa Robinson Marino
(212) 379-6314
16 Madison Sq. Park W., 12th Fl., New York, NY 10010

PRESS AND DIRECT

nathanielperryvoice@gmail.com
www.nathanielperry.me
YouTube: Poem Cast (Nathaniel B. Perry)
Charlotte, NC (Eastern Time)